DUNGEON FOR SALE! CHEAP!

Make your games more visual and exciting! Fill your table with dungeon rooms and corridors . . . at a bargain price. The Cardboard Heroes Dungeon Floors are marked off with both square and hex grids, so they'll work with any game system. Infinite layouts, infinite dangers . . .

INSTRUCTIONS

Any time it's not obvious where to cut, look for the black guidelines at the borders of the pages. Wherever possible, we made the piece borders black, to leave you more margin for error when cutting.

The floors have both hex and square grids. Lay them out so they line up with the pattern you're using, and ignore the other pattern . . . When an incomplete square or hex is caused by overlap, treat it as part of the square or hex above or beside it. Treat stairs as being one square wide.

The corridors have 45-degree cuts at each corner so they can overlap the walls of rooms or other corridors. You can make more and different rooms, wider corridors, and so on by overlapping the existing ones. We have provided long sections of wall that you can cut as you wish in order to divide rooms. There are also sections of floor without walls so you can cover inconvenient walls.

1" squares and "alcove" pieces can both be used to terminate corridors.

Doors are provided for use as needed. Secret doors, of course, are invisible until the dungeon-delvers locate them . . .

Rubber cement is convenient for holding things together (or to the table) temporarily.

Tell Us What You Think!

We'll welcome your suggestions for further Cardboard Heroes sets. Write us at Steve Jackson Games, PO Box 18957, Austin, TX 78760 . . . or visit our website at www.sjgames.com to see what's new! The page for the Cardboard Heroes line is www.sjgames.com/heroes.

Check with your local retailer for more Cardboard Heroes sets (or more copies of this book, to build your dungeon even bigger). Note: If you just need a few more rooms or corridors, you can buy individual pages from this set from Warehouse 23 (www.warehouse23.com) while our supply of loose pages lasts.
